- 2) From the Member Secretary, State Planning Commission Letter No. 1644/SPC(PC)/2017, dated 14.11.2017.

ORDER:

The Principal Chief Conservator of Forests has stated that the research plots and other open areas of State Forest Research Institute generate a lot of bio waste in the form of leaf litter, broken branches, twigs, dead branches, bamboos and weeded biomass etc., Proper disposal of these bio waste is of utmost importance to keep the research plots clean and to avoid any fire hazard especially in summer. If this biomass is properly disposed by converting them into compost, it will be a useful product and also has a potential for generating revenue. The traditional method requires more than a year's time for converting the dead branches and other woody parts into compost. By using the shredder, Pulverizer machinery and using modern techniques, the time required can be considerably reduced and faster composting of the entire biomass without any wastage can be achieved.
